

Transitions

Contributed by Anita Dobin

Selling your home

What could be more stressful than selling your home? How about getting it ready for viewing? Today's volatile real estate market compels you to make your home stand out from the crowd especially during the open house phase. Nothing prepares your home better than having it professionally staged. If you are unfamiliar with "staging" it is the process of "neutralizing" the home to create a mass appeal style to potential buyers. SOS offers home staging with several budget conscious levels of involvement. We offer:

- consultation only
- pre-open house prep
- or the complete staging package.

Any one of these options will turn your house for sale into a home that sells.

Newlyweds / First Apartment / Empty Nesters

Starting on the path to a new life experience should be fun not stressful. Getting some expert advice on how to make your new space attractive and comfortable will make your transition easier. We can offer proven solutions along with a workable floor plan that takes the guess work out of furniture purchases and placement. Honey can you move the couch to that wall? No, how about the other wall? Our expertise will save your back and your relationship.